DESIGNING TOMORROW'S HEALTHCARE

CleanMed Europe is the leading sustainable healthcare conference in Europe, bringing together healthcare leaders and professionals from Europe and beyond to share ideas, innovations, problems, and solutions for sustainability in European healthcare. The conference showcases cutting-edge practices in sustainable healthcare and is the ideal venue for healthcare innovators to network and share ideas, finding new ways to drive change within their organisations and communities.

CleanMed Europe 2021 Online will take place from 29 November - 3 December. We expect over 500 participants, including clinicians, healthcare professionals and senior leaders from hospitals and healthcare systems across the continent, as well as a diverse range of global service providers and business innovators.

The theme of CleanMed Europe 2021 Online is Designing tomorrow's healthcare. As we plan our recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic, climate change and environmental degradation pose increasing long term threats to the health and wellbeing of people across the world. There is now an unprecedented opportunity to reshape healthcare so that it can meet the needs of tomorrow - creating a service that is sustainable, equitable, and resilient to growing environmental health threats and future pandemics.

HCWH Europe is a non-profit network of European hospitals and healthcare providers, healthcare systems, local authorities, research/academic institutions and environmental and health organisations. HCWH Europe's mission is to transform the European healthcare sector so that it reduces its environmental footprint, becomes a community anchor for sustainability, and a leader in the global movement for environmental health and justice.
